Newspaper Bulletia. COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 22, 97. AN IMPORTANT DISCOVERY TO APPLE GROWERS.

The wooly-aphis or apple-root plant-louse is beheved to be doing more damage to the apple orchards of South Missouri than all other insect pests and diseases combined. This pest has not made its appearance in alarming numbers in the orchards of North Missouri, but is troubling the nurseries to some extent. The Missouri experiment station has made a large number of experiments with different methods of combating this insect, and has devised cheap and efficient means of exterminating it. The results of these studies are published in Bulletin No. 35 of the station, by Prof. J. M. Stedman. These results may be briefly summarized as follows:

The limb form of this insect can be readily killed by one or two thorough sprayings with strong kerosene emulsion. Apple seedlings, buds, and grafts should be planted in a small trench filled with finely powdered tobacco dust and lightly covered with earth. This will keep the wooly-aphis away. Apple nursery stock should have a liberal supply of tobacco dust applied to the roots every spring in order to kill the wooly-aphis and prevent it from establishing itself there It should be applied by removing some of the earth from around the roots, filling the excavation with tobacco dust, and lightly covering it with earth. Newly cleared timber land should be cultivated in corn or other crop for two years before the apple trees are set out, in order to kill the wooly-aphis that may be on the roots of the wild crab and allied trees. Apple nursery stock should have the roots cleaned and dipped for a minute in strong kerosene emulsion in order to kill the wooly-aphis that may be there. In planting apple trees tobacco dust should be neely and over all the roots, and close around the trunk, in order to kill and prevent the wooly aphis from establishing itself there. Every spring, as soon as settled warm weather appears, each tree should have a liberal supply of tobacco dust applied to its roots by removing the earth from around the trunk for a distance of two feet and four inches in depth, evenly filling this with the tobacco dust and covering it with earth. The root form of the wooly-aphis may be cheaply and easily killed and kept away from an apple tree by the liberal use of tobacco dust. About five or six pounds of this substance should be applied as above directed to the roots of every infested tree, and one-half this amount should be applied in a similar manner each succeeding spring. Costing approximately two cents per tree per year. This insect may also be killed by injecting one fluid ounce of carbon bisulphide two feet away from the trunk on two sides of the tree, but the use of this substance is not advised except in cases, since a little carelessness may injure the tree, and it is always necessary to immediately treat the trees with tobacco dust in order to keep the insect away.

Any one interested in this subject will be able to procure a copy of this bulletin free of charge by addressing the director of the experiment station, Columbia, Missouri, Reflections of a Bachelor. A woman's story always contains a moral and a pair of pants.

It is curious that a thing which will ose a man a woman's friendship won't lose him her love.

Most women seem to think they wear skirts to try to fool men into thinking they haven't got two legs.

When a girl makes up her mind that she wants a man she begins to pretend to be interested in his work.

One of the main advantages of going to college is that you can go on a bat and have it called an escapade.

After a girl has been married six months she's a good deal more likely to talk about the weather than about communion of souls.

It doesn't matter whether a man has a headache or falls down and breaks his leg, his wife will say it is because he doesn't get enough sleep. Probably a woman could never explain why she cries at a wedding. The girl who is never seen without a sunny smile is just about as monotonous as a white-washed fence.

After a girl has once found out what is the proper thing in men's neckties, you can never make her believe that she isn't a good judge ly produce hardihood. It is better of human nature.

How Colds are Caught.

From the New York Journal

Take care of your circulation. That is the great principle which they who would avoid colds should bear in mind. Keep it up in all parts of the body and you will live long and be by pneumonia.

It is a mistake to suppose that steady exposure to cold will necessaricalculated to produce chills. The best condition in which to face the cold is with a genial warmth pervading the whole body.
